Gun Violence Initiative: City of Gainesville Response to Chair's Letter

Chair Cornell provided historical information on the Gun Violence Initiative and commended the work the City of Gainesville is doing. City Manager Cynthia Curry provided information on the strategic planning process for the gun violence initiative, Impact GNV and the violence interrupters program. She was joined by Shawn Hillhouse – Fire Chief, City of Gainesville. CM Curry advised the Board that because this is a new program, it will take more time to gather and connect the data, but she believes it is important work.

Judge Wilson Bullard asked about the success rates of the program violence interrupters were modeled after and what training was provided. Brittany Coleman, Gun Violence Intervention Program Manager, explained that the City's program drew from "Choose Peace" programs in Chicago, Orlando and Miami. Coleman added that the Interrupters is a public health program that focuses on conflict mediation, community outreach and engagement.

Chair Cornell requested the city to bring back more data as it becomes available. Dr. Labarta commented that it is not uncommon to take the active ingredient in the programs that work as practice-based evidence and agreed it is too soon to measure. No public comment was made on this topic.

Chair's Report

The new Chief Financial Officer, Molly Greenwald, introduced herself to the Board.

Executive Director's Evaluation

Chair Cornell described the 360-degree evaluation of the Executive Director, Marsha Kiner, that was completed. Vice Chair Twombly noted ED Kiner's passion and positively remarked on her professionalism and work in the community. Member Chance commended the way ED Kiner facilitated the community conversation on childcare last week – her presence as a leader and convener was well done. Judge Wilson Bullard stated that ED Kiner has an innate ability to deal with complex issues diplomatically and kindly with integrity and grace. Member Pinkoson highlighted ED Kiner's grace, passion, diplomacy, and gentleness. Dr. Labarta acknowledged that the organization is running more smoothly now thanks to ED Kiner's leadership. Member Certain agreed on the comments shared through the Board. ED Kiner responded with appreciation for the comments and publicly thanked the team for completing the evaluation and providing their viewpoints as well.

Member Certain moved for the acceptance of the Executive Director's Evaluation with a 6% raise effective October 1, 2025. Dr. Labarta seconded the motion. Chair Cornell requested the motion be split into two parts. Member Pinkoson commented that the 6% is generous – and everyone deserves more.

Public Comments: Xaviera White, CEO of the Early Learning Coalition of Alachua County, shared that she has had the pleasure of working and learning from ED Kiner and recommended the Board approve an 8% increase. Bishop Chris Stokes, Willie Mae Stokes Center – voiced support for ED Kiner and her leadership and requested the motion be restated.

Board Comments: Member Certain reminded the Board of the fine line of spending public funds. Chair Cornell and Member Pinkoson agreed that the pay is warranted, but the timing is wrong.

The votes were separated and the Board unanimously approved for the acceptance of the ED evaluation. The vote for a 6% raise was passed by majority, with Chair Cornell dissenting.

Presentations

After-school Program Results

Research, Planning, & Evaluation Coordinator, Bonnie Wagner, provided an overview on the demographics and outcomes of the CTAC-funded after-school programs. Average participating household income was $43,321.00/year, with 66% of households sitting below the Federal Poverty threshold. An average of 170 program days were provided, exceeding the target. Youth participated an average of 103 days for a total of 74%. Enrichment content was provided to the middle and high school programs – attendance and participation statistics were also measured.

The Board reviewed the provided performance measures, noting that actual measures exceeded target measures in every category except for middle school enrichment attendance.

Member Certain asked if concessions are made for middle school providers due to the lateness of middle school dismissal not allowing much time for programming. Wagner responded that it is something that has recently been discussed with the providers and CTAC may look into this issue.

Member Pinkoson observed that the parents and children appear to think positively of what is being provided and asked what caused the decrease in participation. Wagner explained one of the providers had a significant decrease in enrollment and another had transportation issues. Wagner also advised that literacy, mathematics, and grade level statistics and requirements will be provided now that the data sharing agreement with Alachua County Public Schools is in place. Member Pinkoson suggested ferreting out the difference in attendance numbers when students enroll after the program is already under way.

Chair Cornell expressed approval of the data on literacy and mathematics on page 193 but commented that he does not want to put this requirement on the after-school programs, although he appreciates having it involved. Chair Cornell also asked how staff are making the determinations on the nonprofit lifestyle designation given to the programs. ED Kiner reminded him that staff made its best guess based on what was known about the programs.

Dr. Labarta suggests CTAC supports the providers by guiding them through the self-assessment found in the middle of the book, which describes what an organization looks like at each phase of the lifecycle. Dr. Labarta also recommends helping organizations set aside funds for selfie and consulting time.

Public comments:

Bishop Chris Stokes from the Willie Mae Stokes Community Center thanked CTAC for their investment into their programs, especially in the rural communities. Micanopy is dependent on the school bus and sometimes students arrive at the center just in time to go home. Shared challenges of after-school programs and opportunities for program participants. Bishop Stokes would also like to know how they can get the lifecycles book. ED Kiner responded that all CTAC providers will receive the lifecycles book and CTAC will arrange for a facilitator to assist them.

Christi Arrington, Executive Director of Girls' Place, echoed Bishop Stokes' appreciative remarks and request for grace for after-school program directors. Arrington is excited to be more connected to the school district and thereby more impactful and aligned. Board members are invited to come by for a tour of the facility at any time.

Allysen Marks from Kids Count gave her sincere thanks to the Trust, Board, and other providers for all the work put in and stated it all comes together. Executive Directors do it all (serve snack, distribute behavior tickets, teach good touch/bad touch etc.). Marks also invited the Board to come for a tour.

Isabel Brazzel from Gainesville Circus Center – thanked CTAC for all the support and shared that the children are blossoming. Since the after-school convening in July, she feels more connectivity between programs, and they are starting to create an interconnected web among providers. GCC is excited for everyone to attend Lights on After-school. Brazzel asked Wagner about enrollment counts at the end of the year and the total number of students served where numbers that are higher may be due to higher turnover as opposed to programs with more retention.

Kristin Kozelsky Reed, PACE Center for Girls commented that their program serves teenaged participants and offers academics and social-emotional services, but they are not after-school. Everything they do is free to the participants. PACE would like to be considered for what they do.

Chair Cornell directed everyone to the statistics on page 186 of the meeting packet, which feature the exact students he wants to help. CTAC is at a place where those connections can be made to help make improvements and opportunities with children and their families.

General Public Comments

Christi Arrington gave kudos to their TWA summer intern, Essence Davis, who received the Scholar Athlete of the Week, and commented that many students on the Eastside volleyball team came through Girls Place.

Board Member Comments

Member Pinkoson asked that Judge Wilson Bullard continue to share any questions or concerns on the Gun Violence Initiative that she may see.

Judge responded by reiterating that she is seeing gun crimes on a weekly basis and to be careful to distinguish between possession and gun violence. There are a lot of guns in the hands of juveniles, which is an ongoing, continuing problem.

Member Chance stated that she sees a lot of meaningful connectivity – that after-school programs are on the brink of feeling more involved with their students and teachers. Providers connecting and collaborating rather than competing is great growth. The conversation on childcare brought the Chamber, Children's Movement and other partners together – kudos to staff and providers.

Member Certain suggested maybe the Trust should connect with Moms Demand Action to do work on safe gun storage. She emphasized that helping parents with childcare helps with safety and student attendance. Member Certain offered best wishes for the upcoming Lights on Afterschool event.

Judge Wilson Bullard commented on the importance of childcare. Some parents need their older child at home to help with younger children and older family members in the home.

Chair Cornell would like to move Board comments to after FYI section going forward.

September 10, 2025

As we prepare to close out this year, I reflect on the progress we made as a Trust. I am honored to share an assessment of my contributions to our work. Our combined accomplishments fill me with pride, and I am grateful for the Board's trust and support.

This year, we continued to focus on advancing our strategic goals while ensuring the day-to-day operations of the Trust remained strong and responsive. Some of our key accomplishments include:

- Welcoming more than 200 residents to the new facility's grand opening, thus strengthening our visibility and community connections.
- Establishing the Childcare Tuition Assistance program in partnership with the Early Learning Coalition of Alachua County, helping reduce the cost for eligible families to access childcare programs.
- Investing in the Doula Friendly Initiative, resulting in UF Health becoming the first hospital in the nation to receive the Doula Friendly Designation.
- Creating the Parenting Playbook resource magazine, highlighting our commitment to equipping caregivers with knowledge and support.
- Kicking off the Children's Trust monthly Morning Show on Tu Fiesta Radio, sharing the Trust investments in programs and providers.
- Launching the new Children's Trust Podcast, producing "Community Conversations: Real Talk. Real Impact."

Not only am I proud of our visible accomplishments this year, but also of the quieter yet vital work of fostering collaboration, strengthening trust, and cultivating partnerships that sustain our mission. These investments in people and relationships are the foundation for continued growth and long-term impact. While I may serve at the helm, it is the dedication and hard work of the Trust's staff that drives our success. Each day, I am reminded how fortunate I am to work with them. It is their commitment that allows us to achieve the impact our community needs.

Finally, thank you for your thoughtful guidance and steadfast commitment. I look forward to building on this year's progress, learning from our challenges, and working together with you to ensure Alachua County's children, youth, and families have the opportunities and support they deserve.

Sincerely,

Marsha Kiner

AT-A-GLANCE

MARSHA KINER, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR PERFORMANCE EVALUATION

Review Period: October 1, 2024 – September 30, 2025

PLANNING
PERFORMANCE CRITERIA	Exceptional/ Exceeds/ Above Expectations	Meets Expectations	Below Expectations/ Does Not Meet/Needs Improvement
The Executive Director effectively works with the Board to develop a Strategic Plan, directs activities based on the strategic plan, ensures community involvement in the planning process, works with other local planning bodies to ensure coordination and consistency of efforts, and develops benchmarks to track progress toward strategic goals.	88.89% (8)	11.11% (1)
BOARD MEMBER COMMENTS: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The strategic planning session this year was excellent. • I think the strategic planning retreat in July was well done. • The Executive Director is constantly looking 3, 6, 12, and 36 months ahead! • Executive Director Kiner keeps her finger on the pulse of the community by being out in the community, being active in other community boards and groups, and listening to other advocates to help guide her work and to support advising the board on community needs/trends. • I'm not privy to her planning functions. At least as far as I know. • Marsha has demonstrated exceptional leadership in guiding the Gainesville Children's Trust through a thoughtful and inclusive strategic planning process. She effectively collaborated with the Board to articulate a clear vision, establish measurable goals, and align organizational activities with the approved Strategic Plan. Her commitment to community engagement ensured that diverse voices—including parents, service providers, and community partners—were represented in shaping the plan's priorities. In addition, she has maintained strong partnerships with other local planning entities, such as the School District, the County, and nonprofit coalitions, to promote alignment and reduce duplication of services.

FINANCIAL AND PROGRAM MANAGEMENT

PERFORMANCE CRITERIA	Exceptional/ Exceeds/ Above Expectations	Meets Expectations	Below Expectations/ Does Not Meet/Needs Improvement
The Executive Director effectively prepares, manages, and oversees the annual budget and funding recommendations for Board approval, as well as the model forecast for planning purposes. Establishes policies and procedures to evaluate funding requests and oversees program and fiscal monitoring of funded programs.	77.78% (7)	22.22% (2)

BOARD MEMBER COMMENTS:

- Marsha works with her fiscal team to ensure budget is closely monitored and recommendations are made to the Board on funding decisions that aligns with CTAC's strategic planning goals.
- Losing our great CFO unexpectedly was tough, but Marsha responded promptly and effectively. It was smart to engage Scott in the transition plan and hiring process.
- With the addition of the new CFO, I believe this area will move to Exceptional in the coming year!
- There has been considerable growth in this dimension. The annual budget was prepared timely and reflects existing contracts. We continue to need to bring allocated amounts in line with actual amounts so that we do not over-project expenditures, making it appear that we are using fund balance for recurring program expenses. Once the new CFO is in place there are two reporting areas that need improvement: (1) ability to track actual contract expenditures against total budgeted amount by period. (2) reporting on contractual modifications related to over or under utilization of contracted funds.
- Hiring Scott Sumner was a brilliant strategy. I hope our transition to the new CFO is as smooth and as effective.
- Marsha has consistently demonstrated strong fiscal leadership in the preparation, management, and oversight of the Gainesville Children's Trust annual budget. She ensures that funding recommendations presented to the Board are data-informed, strategically aligned with community priorities, and fiscally responsible. The development of a reliable financial forecast model has strengthened long-range planning and allowed the Trust to make informed decisions about sustainability and growth. She has also established clear, transparent policies and procedures to evaluate funding requests, ensuring fairness, accountability, and alignment with strategic goals. Her oversight of both programmatic and fiscal monitoring processes has enhanced partner accountability and ensured that taxpayer dollars are invested effectively to improve outcomes for children and families.

1	Marsha attempts to motivate staff with words of appreciation and small gestures of thanks but these gestures often fall short and seem empty when her day-to-day attitude is less than pleasant toward staff. Marsha also attempts to encourage collaboration between staff but has clear favoritism which creates a divide amongst staff resulting in an in-group and out-group social hierarchy within the office.	9/22/2025 3:01 PM
2	She loves to celebrate milestones, and she wants staff to be just excited to celebrate each other and together. This is appreciated. In team meetings, there are times when the tone or mood shifts unexpectedly by her, which can make it difficult to maintain positive energy and affects morale. Additionally, when concerns are addressed, they are sometimes framed in a way that feels tied to job security. This can make it challenging for staff to feel fully motivated or to trust that collaboration is being fostered in a safe and supportive way.	9/22/2025 11:47 AM

1	Marsha neither handles conflicts between staff members or herself and staff well. Conflicts between staff members are often pushed under the rug and hidden to preserve the appearance that she is in control. Conflicts between herself and staff are typically met with her refusal to acknowledge her role in the conflict and feigned obliviousness to the problem. She generally does not apologize when she has been rude or aggressive and holds obvious grudges against people who disagree or challenge her.	9/22/2025 3:01 PM
2	She makes an effort to address conflict, but there is room for growth in handling challenging situations objectively. At times, responses can feel personal, which may make it harder for others to engage in open dialogue to share facts and support each other. Instead, it can lead staff to process concerns privately rather than openly, which may limit opportunities for collaborative problem-solving.	9/22/2025 11:47 AM

I could not ask for more. The mother energy nurtures and feeds us all and I am proud to be a cub.	9/17/2025 10:29 AM

1	Marsha often requires things to be sent to her weeks in advance and can take weeks of prompting to provide ample feedback. Her feedback is vague and difficult to implement. She will state that she is unhappy with something but will have no guidance on how to change it to meet her standards. Staff often have to do more work to provide her with several options for direction on projects since she does not provide clear guidance as to the direction she would like things to go.	9/22/2025 3:01 PM

1	Meeting with Marsha frequently run over time, wasting the time of staff and providers. Marsha is extremely long winded and will often launch into irrelevant and unnecessary stories from her past or about her life in meetings and gatherings. Marsha frequently waits until last minute to request changes to things, which undermines the effort of staff and adds stress to the environment.	9/22/2025 3:01 PM
