ATTORNEY: Clifford Shepard – Moratorium – the preview of the timeline is to get the study for the various areas to justify and adopt an impact fee, accept the results of the studies, legal prepares an impact fee ordinance adopting the various fees, takes to readings, and 90 days from adoption (2nd reading) before it can go into effect, if moratorium is lifted, impact fees would immediately start to apply, it is critical to move fast to not invite lawsuits, need to show progress with an end date; Code Enforcement – conducting training will be tomorrow (February 7) at 6:30pm; Hungerford – school board is willing to deed the town the Hungerford property, if the lawsuit is dismissed, will meet with PEC on Friday at 3:30pm, spoke with the lawyer from Southern Poverty Law, it is believed that their requests are for protection of the property so that it will not be jeopardized again, there is someone who would like to give $200,000; (Pressley) there is new owner at the 427 East Kennedy property (the motel), will be meeting with the owner.

Councilwoman Wanda Randolph – acknowledged with sympathy the families of Marilyn Sconions and the Jenkin's family; House bill 1530 is being discussed addressing public sleeping in the community and in government facilities and properties, this does not take away from creating an ordinance; Black History – the late James Randolph had an interview in the seventies (50 years ago), it is historic because I am on council and he was on council several times (ran three times) and later two thousands, the things that he addressed back then are the same issues 50 years later we are still dealing with (talked water, roads, government, putting people over politics, leaders, interest of the community not being involved); suggest a special meeting to go over the budget, not receiving budget reports (monthly), need to know all income and revenue spendings with plus and minuses, need monthly reports and a meeting each quarter to discuss the budget; Trash - still waiting on recyclable blue bins on Bethune Drive for over six months; inquired about the recognition event for elected women (it is being worked on).
