REQUEST: Request that the Town Council hear updates from the Dr. Phillips Charities pertaining to the Hungerford School Property

SUMMARY:
On September 30, 2025, the Orange County School Board approved the transfer of the historic Hungerford property from Orange County Public Schools to Dr. Phillips Charities. Beyond the Hungerford property, Eatonville is one of the oldest incorporated Black towns in the United States. At the center of this town’s history is the Hungerford property, formerly home to the Robert L. Hungerford Normal and Industrial School, founded in the late 1800s to provide education to Black students in the South. In recent years, concerns grew over potential private development and the loss of community control.

Dr. Phillips Charities has requested to provide updates during every town council meeting to the town Council on the plans towards redeveloping the Hungerford School property.

RECOMMENDATION: - Recommending that the Town Council hear updates from the Dr. Phillips Charities pertaining to the Hungerford School Property.

How Data Centers Use Water, and Why Cooling Design Matters

Data center water usage has become a growing concern for communities where new infrastructure is being built. As more AI, cloud, streaming, and enterprise workloads move into data centers, people want to understand what that growth means for the places they live. How much power will it use? How much water will it use? What does responsible growth actually look like?

When it comes to water, the conversation often gets flattened into one assumption: data centers use massive amounts of water. Some do. Some don't. The difference comes down to

Water Withdrawal vs. Water Consumption

To understand how data centers actually affect local water supplies, it helps to understand the difference between water withdrawal and water consumption.

Water withdrawal is the amount of water taken from a source, such as a municipal system. Water consumption is the portion that is actually used up and not returned, typically through evaporation. A system can move large amounts of water through it without consuming much of it, and what impacts local water supply long-term is consumption.

When people hear that data centers “use water,” they are usually thinking about consumption. But not every cooling system is designed to consume water in the same way.

Why Data Centers Use Water

Servers generate a ton of heat, and every application, transaction, and workload runs on physical infrastructure that must stay within safe operating temperatures. If cooling fails, performance drops, hardware can be damaged, and critical services can be disrupted.

Water is often used because it is an efficient way to transfer heat. Many large data centers rely on evaporative cooling systems, where water absorbs heat and then evaporates as part of the heat rejection process. That design can be efficient from an energy standpoint, but it also means water is continuously consumed during normal operation. That is where most of the headlines come from.

Not All Cooling Systems Use Water the Same Way

Cooling design is where the real difference happens. Some data centers use evaporative cooling, where water is intentionally lost through evaporation every day as part of normal operation. In large deployments, that can add up to millions of gallons per year. Others use reclaimed or non-potable water to reduce strain on drinking water supplies, or liquid and immersion cooling for high-density workloads.

And some, like HostDime's upcoming SuperNova facility, use air-cooled chillers connected to closed-loop chilled water systems. In a closed-loop system, water circulates through piping and heat exchangers without being intentionally evaporated. Once the system is filled, the same water is reused continuously. Makeup water may be needed over time, but only in small amounts for maintenance, leaks, or system servicing.

The result is a fundamentally different water profile. Some facilities can consume millions of gallons each year, while others are designed to consume virtually none for cooling.

HostDime's Approach to Data Center Water Usage

HostDime's SuperNova data center in Central Florida was designed with this distinction in mind. The facility uses air-cooled chillers connected to a closed-loop chilled water system. Instead of relying on evaporative cooling towers, heat is rejected through air-cooled equipment, while chilled water circulates internally to cool the IT environment.

Once the system is filled, that water remains in circulation. It is not consumed during normal operation. Ongoing water use is limited to minimal makeup water for maintenance, leaks, or service-related adjustments.

As part of this purpose-built data center design, the system includes approximately 2,750 gallons of water storage distributed across three closed-loop tanks, one per chiller. This design allows the system to continue circulating chilled water during a power outage. With pumps supported by backup power, the stored water helps maintain cooling to the server rooms even if primary systems are interrupted.

So the question is not simply whether a data center uses water, but whether that water is being consumed or recirculated. For SuperNova, the cooling system is designed to recirculate water rather than continuously lose it through evaporation.

Why This Matters for Central Florida

The Orlando area is the fastest growing metro area in the United States. More people are moving here, more businesses are expanding, and more digital services need to be delivered locally. That growth requires infrastructure, and that infrastructure needs to be designed responsibly. Communities should understand not just what is being built, but how it operates and what impact it has on shared resources. Water is a meaningful part of that conversation.

A data center that consumes millions of gallons per year for cooling presents a very different profile than one built around a closed-loop, air-cooled system. They may look similar from the outside, but their long-term impact on local water resources is not the same.

Section IV. Item #C.

What SuperNova reflects is a deliberate choice to design systems that minimize water consumption from the start, not as an afterthought, but as a core engineering decision. In a region where water resources and community trust both matter, that choice is part of what it means to build responsibly.

REQUEST: Request that the Town Council review the previous Amendments and consider implementing Amendment No. 3 to the development agreement of the Host Dime AI Data Center.

SUMMARY: Host Dime has been granted multiple formal extensions and amendments by the Town of Eatonville to finish its 100,000 square-foot facility.

Timeline of Amendments and Extensions

According to official municipal filings, the operations start date was delayed through the following legal updates:

- Original Date: The project was initially scheduled for completion by July 31, 2025, but required adjustments earlier in the planning phase.
- Early Extension: The town first pushed the required operational deadline back to October 29, 2020.
- Amendment No. 1: Formalized a new completion target of June 30, 2024.
- Amendment No. 2: Extended the timeline again to July 31, 2025.
- Amendment No. 3: Recommending increase in fees up to $500 per day penalty if the company misses the new established milestone.

Project Status and Delivery

Construction on the $100 million AI-ready facility at 1 Innovate Place is nearing its final stage.

- Current Forecast: HostDime expects the building to fully open in Q3 2026.
- Infrastructure Financials: The Town of Eatonville provided $200,000 in reimbursements to cover third-party design and construction costs for potable water and sewer connections.
- Community Impact: As completion nears, the Eatonville Town Council has faced increasing pushback from local residents raising concerns over the facility’s long-term impact on noise, utility bills, water resources, and power grids as well three scheduled presentations to the Town Council on updates.

RECOMMENDATION: 1. Discuss implementing a recommended legally binding Amendment No. 3 to the Development Agreement, for the Town Council to further discuss accountability to Host Dime commitments withholding the final Certificate of Occupancy if the developer fails to fulfill site commitments such as mandatory sound dampening, water resource impacts, operational utilities, compliance with local, county, state, and federal standards. 2. That Town Council under Amendment #2 was to collect daily contractual fines of $250 per day due to the Town of Eatonville's the last agreement up to December 2025. Desire to levy additional fines to the present until standard safety codes and site criteria are fully satisfied as well as community engagement for the protection of the residents and businesses community.

a. Site Plan. The site plan for the Project (the “Site Plan”) shall be prepared for review and approval by the Town’s Planning Board and Town Council, as required by the Development Code. The Town agrees to expedite the review of the Site Plan and other permits. Notwithstanding any part of the Site Plan to the contrary, the Project shall be subject to, and the Site Plan shall reflect, the following conditions, requirements, and restrictions:

As part of the consideration from the Owner in return for the Town selling the Property separately from the Master Parcel, the Owner agrees to the following:

a. The Owner and its successors in interest shall be part of the property owners' association for the Master Parcel, if and when one is formed by the Master Developer, so long as the Owner's membership rights and duties are the same as other similarly situated property owners in the association. The Owner will have the right to review the property owners' association documents for the Master Parcel and provide comments prior to adoption.

b. The Owner will contribute to the cost of operation and maintenance of the master stormwater system in the same manner as owners of other properties drained by the system.

(a) Title shall be conveyed to the Project Buyer by special warranty deed and quit claim bill of sale in the forms attached as Attachments B and C respectively.

(b) Closing shall take place no later than 30 days after the Town satisfies the Forced Sale Conditions (the "Project Closing Date"). Prior to such closing, the Project Buyer and the Town shall have access to the Property and the Incomplete Project, during normal business hours to inspect and perform such reasonable and standard tests and assessments as are typically performed on commercial property such as the Property and the Incomplete Project in connection with the sale of such property. The Owner shall provide the Town with a copy of all of the following documents: all Project surveys, engineering and construction plans, renderings and sketches, all agreements with any general contractor, subcontractor, architect or engineer, insurance policies on the Project, any construction payment or performance bond, any lease, sublease or license agreement for any part of the Project.

Execution
5/25/2016

(c) The Project Buyer shall pay for all standard closing costs, including recording fees, title insurance premiums and documentary stamp tax on the special warranty deed. The Owner shall pay for the fees the costs of its legal counsel.

(d) Purchase sale price shall equal the aggregate of the Owner's verifiable costs to purchase the Property and construct the Incomplete Project, pro-rated for real property taxes to the date of closing (the "Sales Proceeds").

(e) Sales Proceeds, shall be applied and disbursed as follows to the extent of available Sales Proceeds: first to pay off any monetary lien encumbering Property, second to pay off or pay down any Project Indebtedness and last to the Owner. "Project Indebtedness" shall mean any debt held by a third party lender, entered into at arm's length terms in order to provide construction financing for the Project, and secured by a first mortgage on the Property. The Town and the Owner hereby subordinates this Agreement to the lien of mortgage securing any Project Indebtedness.

(f) Should the Project Buyer fail to close on the purchase of the Property and the Incomplete Project by the Project Closing Date for any reason other than the Owner's failure to comply with any Sale Covenant applicable to the Owner, the Forced Sale Option shall expire and have not force or effect and the Town shall reimburse the Owner for all reasonable costs incurred by the Owner in complying with any Sale Covenant applicable to the Owner, including but not limited to legal counsel fees and costs.

9. Force Majeure. Neither party shall be liable for failure to perform any of its obligations under this Agreement during any period in which such party cannot perform due to fire, flood, or other natural disaster, war or other national emergency, embargo, riot, strike, the intervention of any governmental authority, or other causes beyond the reasonable control of the parties (but specifically excluding therefrom general economic conditions or the economy in general as a cause), provided, however, that the party so delayed promptly notifies the other party of such delay.
