F. STAFF REPORTS

Emergency Programs - Tom Mattice reported on an upcoming busy budget and grant season. Multiple city hall office moves after returning from personal leave in November. Tom will be teaching ICS 300 and 400 classes this week. He advised that Michelle Brown would be with Emergency Programs until January 21 and thanked her for her service. Tom noted that more ICS classes were coming in February and March, and the LEPC would receive further information. CBJ received six responses to Hazard Mitigation Plan Grant Request for contractor proposals. He expects a contractor to be selected soon, which will be followed by a planning meeting. A new HMGP plan is expected to be completed by next December. Tom advised that FEMA is pulling out of Juneau shortly, while the Small Business Administration would be here through the end of the month. The SBA registration period for property damage ends December 16, 2025, and for economic injury ends July 16, 2025. Michelle Brown confirmed FEMA application date December 16, 2024. Tom emphasized the importance of getting flood insurance.

JPD – Commander Weske reported that JPD had hired four new officers so far, with three more coming soon and eight more in January, for eleven officers total in the training program. The department is still down ten positions, five of which are at the airport. In December 2025 he anticipates the department will be whole.

CCFR – Teresa Ross reported on efforts to fill the Fire Program Manager position.

Red Cross – Michelle Brown reported about the quarterly faith community luncheon held in early December. She said that discussions included CERT training, working with the LEPC, sheltering training, and the importance of each congregation. Tom confirmed that CERT and sheltering training can be through the Red Cross or through CBJ. More courses are coming in March.

Alaska Native Tribal – Sabrina Grubitz reported that their current focus was on remote locations in Southeast such as Klukwan, Kasaan, and Pelican. Alisha Sell is the certified trainer and she will support Juneau as much as possible. Tom emphasized getting CBJ staff involved in supporting Red Cross and partner training, and upcoming Hazmat training in a few months. Sabrina noted they had completed the EPA Community Change 20 million grant application jointly with CBJ, which addresses funding for the HESCO barriers. Tlingit Haida is looking to fill gaps to support emergency management activities. Tlingit Haida received one year of Hazmat grant funding to train VPSO officers and do community education. Sabrina noted the Nov 20th anniversary of the Rainbow landslide and advised they sent staff to Wrangell to be supportive. She noted a tribal community partner meeting with FEMA Region X and said that FEMA was holding a core values flood recognition event that afternoon. MOUs were approved for cooperative waste management, and for public safety with CBJ.

G. NEW BUSINESS - Group Discussion - Youth Emergency Preparedness

When Mobile Phones are not an Option: Knowledge of important contacts, names, phone numbers, emails, addresses, and speaking to dispatch and first responders.

Michelle Brown explained that a former LEPC member, Chava Lee, contacted the Red Cross with her concerns about teens that don't know phone numbers and addresses for dispatch in the event of an emergency. Red Cross Britt Tonnessen requested that the Juneau LEPC discuss potential solutions. One solution could be adding it to existing programs serving schools, etc., and we are starting the conversation with the LEPC. Members suggested joining it with the Red Cross' program Prepare with Pedro, which includes family contact cards for students and parents. Destiny Sargent added that adults could benefit from memorizing numbers as well. The public also needs to know about alternate communication such as satellite phones and Hamm Radio. CCFR Theresa Ross advised that CCFR delivered an educational program to students, and this could be added to the curriculum as well as partnering to work on this with the Red Cross.
