Stacey Slowinski was recognized as Tinton Falls’ 2026 Citizen of the Year for more than three decades of preserving the town’s history and character through her leadership as chairwoman of the Historic Preservation Commission, board historian, and founder of the Friends of the Crawford House, which she helped transform into a vibrant center for education and community programming. Beyond historic preservation, she has contributed extensively to the library, schools, county organizations, PTA and music programs, community gardens, youth mentoring, and other initiatives that strengthen community connections and improve residents’ lives. Ms. Slowinski thanked the borough administration, staff, and DPW for their essential and ongoing support, stating that none of the Crawford House accomplishments would have been possible without the borough’s backing, beginning with Anne McNamara’s initial encouragement of the project.
